

Domaine La Perdrière

Nestled at the foot of the prestigious Dentelles de Montmirail in Sablet, the vines of Domaine La Perdrière thrive on 27 hectares of organically farmed land. The estate was taken over in 2010 by Vasco Perdigao, supported by his wife Sonia, a former nurse who retrained as a winemaker.

Vasco honed his craft with passion over several years in the renowned vineyards of the Northern Rhône. Yet it was in the southern part of the Rhône Valley that he chose to settle and fully express his vision as a vigneron.

The year 2024 marks a turning point for the estate: the winery has been expanded and modernized to improve working conditions and optimize the quality of the wines throughout their vinification, ageing, and storage phases. A new visual identity — including redesigned labels — affirms this transformation.

The name Domaine Chamfort is now a thing of the past, making way for Domaine La Perdrière. This new name is a tribute to the Perdigao family name — meaning “partridge” in both Provençal and Portuguese. La Perdrière is thus the place where partridges find shelter — and symbolically, a home for our wines as well.
